Joe Manchin Just Cooked the Planet

The senator won't quit fossil fuels and is going to neuter the reconciliation bill — and we're all going to pay the price

By JEFF GOODELL

Sen. Joe Manchin, D-W.Va., speaks about the $3.5 government overhaul bill, at the U.S. Capitol in Washington, Thursday, Sept. 30, 2021.

Rolling Stone: Manchin literally 'cooked the planet'

West Virginia Sen. Joe Manchin just cooked the planet. I don't mean that in a metaphorical sense. I mean that literally. Unless Manchin changes his negotiating position dramatically in the near future, he will be remembered as the man who, when the moment of decision came, chose to condemn virtually every living creature on Earth to a hellish future of suffering, hardship, and death.

Quite a legacy. But he has earned it.

Last night, during the insane and at times comical negotiations over President Biden's infrastructure bill and his $3.5 trillion Build Back Better agenda (aka the reconciliation bill), Manchin let it be known that he was not going to vote for any measure above $1.5 trillion. And because Democrats can't afford to lose a single vote in the Senate, if Manchin won't vote for it, the reconciliation bill won't pass.

Bill McKibben: Manchin's no vote on budget bill will alter Earth's 'geologic record'

Bill McKibben ✓
@billmckibben

He plans to gut Biden's climate plan, and with it the chances for swift global progress. This is high on the list of most consequential actions ever taken by an individual Senator; you'll be able to see the impact of this vain man in the geologic record.

How Many Times Do We Have To Save The Planet!?

Al Gore in 2015 on Paris pact:

“Years from now, our grandchildren will reflect on humanity’s moral courage to solve the climate crisis and they will look to December 12, 2015, as the day when the community of nations finally made the decision to act.”

We (Were) Saved!

Secretary of State John F. Kerry in 2015:

“This is a tremendous victory for all of our citizens—not for any one country or bloc, but a victory for all of the planet, and for future generations.”

‘Historic Day’ went bust?!

French foreign minister, Laurent Fabius in 2015:

“History is coming, in fact, history is here,” he said. “On 12 December 2015, we can have a historic day, a major date to go down in the history of mankind. The date can become a message of life.”

We were NOT Saved After All!?

Fmr. British prime minister, David Cameron in 2015:

“We’ve secured our planet for many,
many generations to come – and there is nothing more important than that.”

Past Savings of Earth Go Kaput

President Obama in 2015 hailed the UN Paris climate agreement as a “turning point for the world.”

“We came together around the strong agreement the world needed.”

History forgot Paris!

Former U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon in 2015:

“History will remember this day.” -

“The Paris agreement on climate change is a monumental success for the planet and its people.”

Climate movement grandpa James Hansen declares the Green New Deal is ‘nonsense’ – ‘We need a real deal which understands how economics works’

James Hansen: "The green new deal as they've defined that is nonsense. We need a real deal which understands how economics works and what we need to do in order to move off of fossil fuels. And that requires in addition to this rising carbon fee, with the distribution to the public. We also have to have the technologies we have to help the developing countries, the Western world burned the carbon budget for the whole world. Now we've got a problem. And we're going to have to help those countries they want to raise their standards of living to match ours. And so there, it's a big problem but it's a solvable problem."

Fmr. Clinton/Gore Advisor Naomi Wolf: Green New Deal is 'fascism'

Wolf on February 20, 2021: "Time to re-watch this expose of what is really in the Green New Deal....we read it, both versions. And I WANT a 'green new deal'. This one is a straight up power grab."

Wolf in 2019: "I like it (GND), as an outcome, I know we probably need it, but it is definitely short-circuiting one of the pillars of our democracy, which is that the bill gets to be drafted by people's representatives, and passed by the people's representatives, and these 15 people [making up the committee] and Nancy Pelosi don't get to say what's in the bill, right? That's kind of called Fascism."

Energy Dominance Under Trump!

U.S. Energy Information Administration (EIA): The United States has now returned to a position of energy dominance for the first time since the 1950s, during the administrations of Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

“In 2019, U.S. energy production exceeded energy consumption for the first time since 1957, and U.S. energy exports exceeded energy imports for the first time since 1952,” the EIA reported in 2020.

And the U.S. was doing all of this while leading the world in reducing carbon dioxide emissions without a cap-and-trade, carbon (dioxide) taxes, a Green New Deal, or being committed to the UN Paris Agreement.

USA's Climate 'Solutions' Future?!

'Era of Constant Electricity at Home is Ending, says UK power chief' —

'Families would have to get used to only using power when it was available'

Era of constant electricity at home is ending, says power chief

• The days of permanently available electricity may be coming to an end, the head of the power network said yesterday.

Families would have to get used to only using power when it was available, rather than constantly, said Steve Holliday, chief executive of National Grid. Mr Holliday was challenged over how the country would "keep the lights on" when it relied more on wind turbines as supplies of gas dwindled. Electricity provided by wind farms will increase six-fold by 2020 but critics complain they only generate on windy days.

Mr Holliday told Radio 4's Today programme that people would have to "change their behaviour". "The grid is going to be a very different system in 2020, 2030," he said. "We keep thinking that we want it to be there and provide power when we need it. It is going to be much smarter than that.

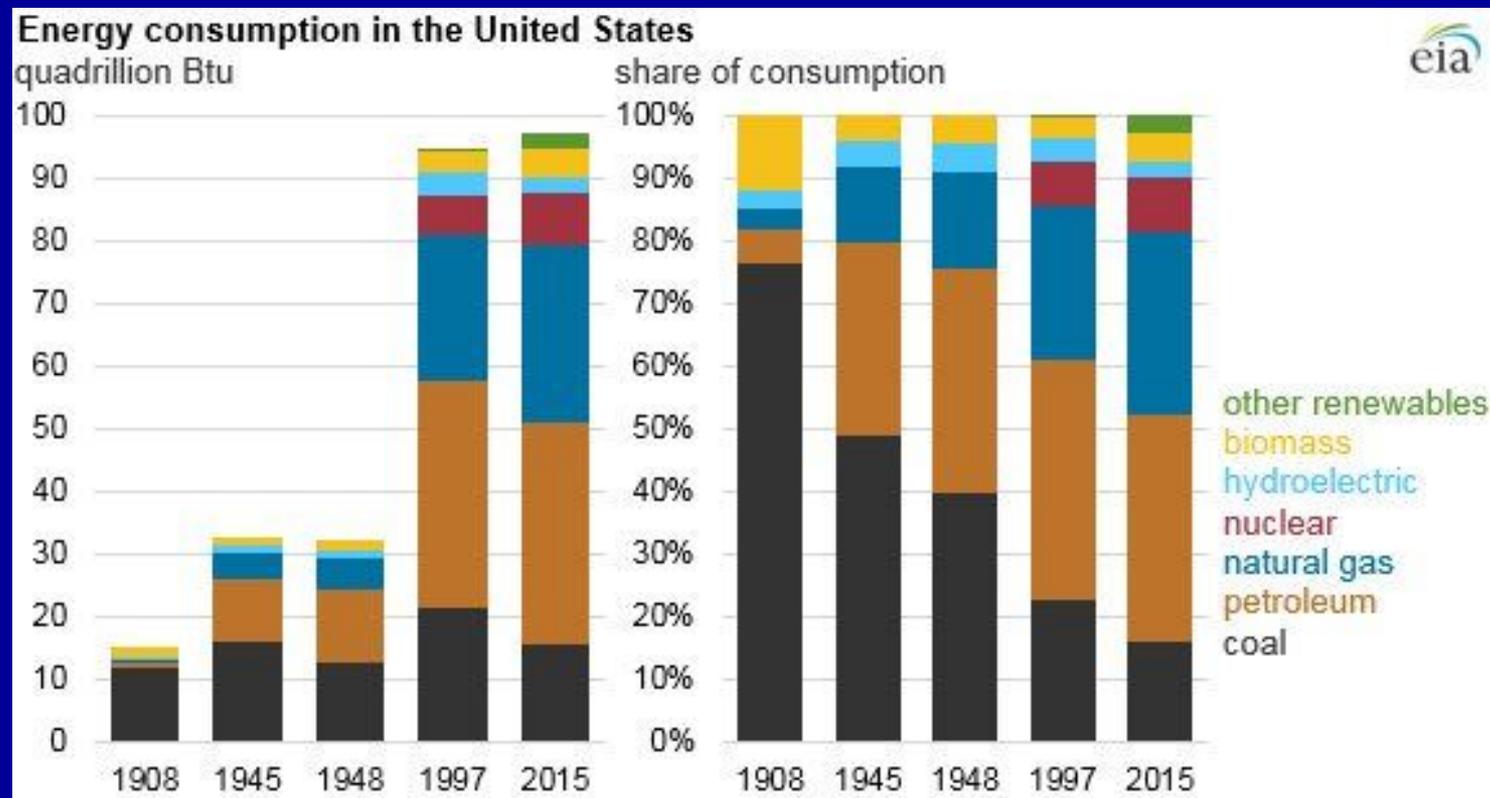

"We are going to change our own behaviour and consume it when it is available and available cheaply."

Mr Holliday was speaking ahead of a speech last night to the Royal Academy of Engineering, in which he warned that the government was "looking more to communities and individuals to take power into their hands".

He also warned that pylons would still be used to carry power cables across the countryside because it was 10 times more expensive to bury them.

"As a society, we all need to be clear about what we can and cannot afford," he said.

Wind farms produced 'practically no electricity' during Britain's cold snap

Wind farms produced "practically no electricity" during the cold snap which manufacturers' groups say could lead to severe winter energy shortages.

A general view of Europe's biggest onshore wind farm, Whitelee Windfarm on the outskirts of Glasgow Photo: PA

The cold weather has been accompanied by high pressure and a lack of wind, which meant that only 0.2pc of a possible 5pc of the UK's energy was generated by wind turbines over the last few days.

Jeremy Nicholson, director of the Energy Intensive Users Group (EIUG), gave warning that this could turn into a crisis when the UK is reliant on 6,400 turbines accounting for a quarter of all UK electricity demand over the next 10 years.

Constructing and replacing each wind turbine consumes about 30,000 tons of iron ore, 50,000 tons of concrete, and 900 tons of plastics for the huge blades. Many of those already installed are reaching their 15-20-year end-of-life.
